Annual CFAC Conference a success

Nearly 200 people attended the fourth annual Consumer Family Advocate Council (CFAC) Conference at the Charles Wright Museum of African American History in September.

The conference theme, “Beyond the Surface: Reaching Your Full Potential,” was highlighted by speakers and activities, including voter registration information.

ARISE Detroit founder Luther Keith told consumers that each person is capable of making a contribution that helps make their communities stronger.

Keith, a former journalist and Detroit News columnist, started ARISE Detroit several months ago to help match those in need with organizations that can help them. Deborah Foster, a radio executive, shared how she started Bethlehem House in her childhood as a way to help provide shelter for women and children.
